THREE GARAGES TO BE BUILT IN SALEM

The street paving in Salem has proven only a bonanza to business generally, but the promoters of the garage are also taking heed, and the most popular of these are the automobile agents.

Information has come to The Journal from a source that can readily be relied upon, that within the next six months three garages will be constructed, or rented, in some of the best building in the city, and that orders are being filled for machines of the best make from the Salem residents.

The scale upon which these proposed garages will be constructed is that of the common auto livery places, such as is the case in most cities where the automobile makes its debut, but the business carried on will not take cars in for repair and protection alone, but cars of the best model will be at the service of the public for hire at any time. Expert chauffeurs will be employed by the garages for the purpose of accommodating those who wish to enjoy a few hours' ride through the country in a big touring car. Special chauffeurs will also be reserved for emergency orders, such as doctors' calls, accidents or a hurried passenger to trains, etc. With such an auto service in the city one will be provided with the means of traveling to outlying districts, not connected by railroads, in a most comfortable manner. With the three garages, the rent for cars will be very reasonable, and during the summer months when the livery business in the city is so congested, as has been heretofore, and conveyances are so difficult to procure, an automobile will be unquestionably serviceable to the Salem public who frequent such places as Silver Creek falls, Breitenbach, and the many small towns in which relatives and friends are located.

Although the exact location of the proposed garages is not known, the corner on which stood the Francis livery stable at the intersection of State and Front streets is a probable spot upon which one of the buildings will be erected. Jack Peterson, who is widely known in this city and Portland as being an enthusiastic automobile and financier, is the promoter of this establishment, according to rumor going about.

The old Shields Park property at the intersection of Center and Commercial streets is another situation on which will probably be built an auto factory. The promoter of this particular garage is not known thus far, but from the meager information gained, the man who is to be the occupant has been a good many years in the business, and thoroughly understands the handling of autos. A prominent automobile man of Seattle was in the city some time ago investigating the city in which to install necessary machinery for an automobile garage; whether or not he succeeded in obtaining a suitable place has not been learned, but from the information given out by him while in the city, his intentions are to make a permanent location here in connection with his many auto establishments throughout Oregon and Washington.

John Maurer, the machinist, is now under with work continually and he employs a good sized force of experienced machinists. His establishment contains from two to ten machines all the time which are in need of repairs, and the transient machines can always be found in his building, notwithstanding the fact he does not profess to be a regular garage conductor.

TELEGRAPH COMPANIES FIGHTING FOR CONTROL

(United Press Leased Wire.)

San Francisco, Nov. 21.—Open war between the Postal and the Western Union Telegraph companies which has been brewing for some time, has been declared in the courts here and it is stated today by those who are in a position to know that the two companies are in the struggle for the possession of territory in the United States and Mexico now partly controlled by both concerns. It is asserted that neither company will be content with anything else than the absolute eliminating of the opposing company from the disputed territory.

The trouble was brought to a focus yesterday through the granting by Judge Scawell of a temporary injunction to restrain the Postal company from re-dating messages received from the Western Union for transmission over the Postal cables. Wherever the Postal has been receiving these messages at cable terminals, it has been making an extra charge of $1 a word or $5 a message. The injunction restrains the Postal from collecting the additional charge until the whole matter can be threshed out in the courts.

In the meantime the Western Union is re-dating all messages received from the Postal for Mexico, in which Western Union has the exclusive telegraph rights by contract with the Mexican government.

An additional charge is made for these messages and the Western Union has also refused to accept Postal cable messages for an inland town unless the Postal delivers these messages to it at the point where they are received in the United States.

The attorneys for the Postal company justify the re-dating of Western Union messages for transmission by cable by the statement that unless they be re-dated, the Postal company would become responsible to the persons to whom they are addressed in foreign countries for delays that may occur on Western Union wires. The Postal people say that if they pay the cost of transmission of cable messages from the point where they are received in the United States to the place where they are delivered to the Western Union, the latter company has no right to complain or demand that it shall get the extra toll.

The expansion of the two big telegraph companies has reached a point where they are reaching out for the same territory and it is predicted today that the litigation begun in San Francisco will extend to all parts of the United States. The Western Union is entrenched in Mexico through its exclusive contract with Diaz's government and it has the exclusive right to use Southern Pacific poles and wires.

The Postal company, on the other hand, has cables across both oceans and is paralleling the wires of the Western Union in many parts of the United States.

Railways are beginning to substitute telephone for telegraph instruments for train dispatching.

HAMMERSTEIN SUED FOR BROKEN PROMISE

New York, Nov. 21.—Just at the beginning of his double season here and in Philadelphia, Oscar Hammerstein faces a suit for $100,000 today.

The suit was brought by Miss Francis Lee for alleged breach of contract and it is expected that some of the doings of the "mimic world" will be brought to light, as Miss Lee says she will introduce letters of endorsement written to her by the impresario.

Miss Lee, who was heralded as "The Texas Patti" claims in her suit that Hammerstein promised to make her a grand opera star and failed to do so. She says that she has been compelled to sing in amateur productions because Hammerstein did not sign her with his companies and after spending ten years preparing for her promised career with Hammerstein she is getting no revenue out of her voice.

Miss Lee came here from Texas twelve years ago. One of the letters from Hammerstein she says she will introduce in the case, ends as follows: "I am counting on the days when I have you in my arms again, the only woman in the world I adore." It is signed "Oscar."

Missouri went for Taft by 1206 votes.
